ARE YOU ENJOYING TONIGHT'S FILM?

Did you know that the IMZ curates and compiles the entire film programme for the Film Festival on Rathausplatz every year?

Promoting culture is our mission. Ensuring the performing arts are enjoyed by audiences around the globe is our method.

Doing so grants a significant platform to cultural films + producers: either projected on a 300m² screen like tonight, or in cinemas, on TV + online as well as at festivals worldwide.

IMZ International Music + Media Centre

The global network for cultural content, headquartered in Vienna.

WELCOME TO VIENNA'S RATHAUSPLATZ!

© Stadt Wien/KOM/ David Böhmann

Every year since 1991, this square has transformed into the stage for Europe's biggest culture and culinary festival.

Year after year, the popular Film Festival presents the best recordings from pop, rock, classical, jazz, musical, operetta and opera. And thanks to collaborations with the Vienna State Opera, Vereinigte Bühnen Wien and ORF III, you can look forward to a multitude of top-class productions once again this year. It's this unique mix of first-rate music films and culinary delights from all over the world that captivates hundreds of thousands of guests each season.

The Film Festival is a symbolic representation of Vienna's high quality of life, of shared summer moments and of the joy inherent in art and cuisine.

Enjoy your time set against this beautiful backdrop, surrounded by friendly faces and the kind of diverse offer you'll only find in Vienna. I wish you an evening to remember! All the best and enjoy!

The Rolling Stones show just how a golden anniversary should be done as they take to the stage at New Jersey's Prudential Center for four nights as part of their "50 & Counting" tour. It's the first time this show has been available since 2012, and having been re-edited and remixed, it's now even more stunning. With guest spots from The Black Keys, Lady Gaga, John Mayer, Bruce Springsteen and Mick Taylor, this is a show that goes down as one of their most memorable ever.

stage director: Barrie Kosky | Bavarian State Opera, Munich

Barrie Kosky affords the “operetta of all operettas” a new look and focuses on its morbid side. The scene is Vienna, city of the golden operetta era, where “Die Fledermaus” celebrated its world premiere at the Theater an der Wien in 1874. The revenge of the bat becomes a nightmare for Gabriel von Eisenstein and many others. A society, an entire city dances towards the abyss.

Andrey Kaydanovskiy — The Sleeping Beauty (2024)

Pyotr Ilyich Tchaikovsky
Bruckner Orchester Linz | Marc Reibel
Landestheater Linz

In this interpretation, Sleeping Beauty lives isolated in a world shaped by hedonism, created as a social panorama in a kind of chamber play. She falls into a deep sleep in which the unconscious penetrates to the surface. Sleeping Beauty finally awakens in a reality that is new to her and that will make her a self-confident and self-determined woman. With a lot of humour bordering on the absurd, Andrey Kaydanovskiy deals with the difficult process of growing up.

WIENER
STAATSOOPER

Never has Giuseppe Verdi composed revenge, intrigue and jealousy fierier and more diabolical than in his late opera "Otello". One of the greatest love stories in literature — Otello is the second of Verdi's three Shakespeare operas — fails brutally, cruelly and senselessly. With the title role of Otello, Jonas Kaufmann takes on what is probably the most demanding part of his vocal register He is "in splendid form" (Kronen Zeitung) and "has sung his way into the Olympus as an interpreter of Otello" (klassik-begeistert.de) with this performance.

© Barbara Dalfry

When Tchaikovsky premiered his famous ballet "The Nutcracker" in Saint Petersburg 130 years ago, it was presented as a double bill, as standard at the time, together with the opera "Iolanta". The Volksoper Wien, being part home to the famous Wiener Staatsballett, under the helm of the new artistic director Lotte de Beer and music director Omer Meir Wellber presents both works again in one evening, but not as two separate pieces, but by fusing the two works into one. It's a "successful debut that is also musically convincing" and the "two pieces intertwine like gears".

STAATSOPER

At the Vienna State Opera, Claus Guth stages Puccini's last opera as a chamber drama of timeless topicality — far removed from all pseudo-Chinese clichés and with shooting star Asmik Grigorian and audience favourite Jonas Kaufmann in the two leading roles. For Asmik Grigorian, the role is a debut and she succeeds "brilliantly. [...] Her singing reveals a woman's soul" (Die Presse) and captivates with "glistening high notes, the coldest cantilenas and deeply felt emotions" (Süddeutsche Zeitung).

What's Inside That Crate? (2024)

Bram Algoed

"What's in this box?" wondered the captain, the bus driver, and the mailman as they transported their cargo. The journey takes them over land, across the sea, and into the air before the secret is revealed.

Wo die wilden Kerle wohnen (2023)

Oliver Knussen

with Jasmin Delfs, Katrin Wundsam, Peter Kirk, Zoltan Nagy, Matthias Hoffmann, Martin Summer

Wiener Symphoniker | Stephan Zilias | stage director: Nikolaus Habjan
MusikTheater an der Wien, MuseumsQuartier Halle E, Vienna

Max argues with his mother, but instead of obeying the imposed house arrest, he embarks on a journey to a distant island ... Maurice Sendak let his imagination spark to craft an opera libretto from this, and Oliver Knussen's adventurous score whistles, squeaks, sparkles, glows and dances lightly to it. A fireworks display of ideas — the perfect sope for puppetry virtuoso Nikolaus Habjan.

Pufferfish (2022)

Christian Heck

How does a small, peaceful pufferfish scare off large, threatening fish? By making itself appear even larger and more threatening! But what happens when the deception is revealed, and everyone shows their true selves? Playfully, this short film demonstrates how fear can lead to unwanted power struggles, and how liberating it can be not to pretend.

Max And Moritz (2010)

Gioacchino Rossini, libretto: Edmund Gleede with Denys Cherevychko, Richard Szabó
Volksoper Wien Orchestra | Gerrit Prießnitz
choreographer: Ferenc Barbay, Michael Kropf | Volksoper Wien

Exciting and exhilarating — the well-known tale of Max and Moritz, who keep the whole village on their toes with tricks, retold in dance. Equipped with a lot of wit and irony, all the characters from Wilhelm Busch's "Story Of Seven Boyish Pranks" — the Widow, the Tailor, the Teacher, the Uncle, the Baker, the Farmer and Master Miller, as well as a gaggle of animals — offer a most virtuosic dance entertainment.
